Props

Props such as veils, zills, canes, or other such belly dance props may be used during classes. The student is encouraged to obtain their own props for use outside of class. Props owned by Debbie may be borrowed for class purposes and will be returned at the end of class. On some occasions, Debbie may be able to offer student discounts for the purchase of props.

Belly dance is a form of physical activity. Students with physical limitations MUST be cleared by their physician prior to taking classes. Any limitations need to be discussed prior to instruction for the safety of the student.

Activity is to be done to the level of the individual and only if able to perform without causing injury. Students have the responsibility of notifying the instructor if they have physical pain with any movement. Normal muscle soreness may occur with any new activity, however, pain should not occur.

Choreography by Debbie is the sole ownership of Debbie and may not be used without permission. Global Caravan Tribal BellyDance format, technique and combinations are under copyright and ownership by Paulette Rees-Denis. Debbie is a certified Global Caravan Tribal BellyDance Instructor by Paulette Rees-Denis with permission to teach to the level of her certification. Teaching of any material by students is in violation of copyright laws and may be subject to legal action.

Private instruction is available starting at $40/hr

Performance Options

All students are encourage to try performing if desired. Performance is not mandatory for any student, our focus is on fun and healthy habits first.

Music falls under the copyright laws and may not be sold or distributed without permission of the artist. Debbie encourages students to purchase music from legal sources such as iTunes, Spotify, Amazon, or individual artist.

Performance with Debbie's student troupe is offered to any student. It is not for profit and a non-paid troupe. There are no fees by students for performing. Costumes may be borrowed for use, and to be returned clean as directed by Debbie. Students are encouraged to purchase their own costumes.
